The developers who won city approval in 2019 to keep three sides of the former Alexandra Hotel at Washington Street and Massachusetts Avenue, gut the interior and add several floors to create a 13-story, 150-room boutique hotel have filed a request with the BPDA to instead turn what's left of the structure into a 13-story, 106-unit condo building.

In their request, developers Jas

Bhagal and Thomas Calus said their chances of getting financing for their original hotel project evaporated when the pandemic took hold and the local hotel business collapsed - just a few months after they received their last major approval, from the

Suspect Arrested in Connection to Homicide Investigation at 112 Atkinson Street

SUBMITTED BY THE BOSTON POLICE DEPARTMENT

At about 6:16 PM on Friday September 3, 2021, members of the District D-4 (South End) Drug Control Unit assisted by District D-4 patrol officers arrested Sean Stuart, 53, of Boston, pursuant to three outstanding arrest warrants in connection to a recent fatal stabbing.

According to the Boston Police, details are as follows: At about 6:12 AM on Monday, August 23, 2021, officers assigned to District C-6 responded to a call for a person stabbed at 112 Atkinson Street, Boston. On arrival, officers located, Ugochukwu McDonald Anaele, 29, of Houston, Texas, suffering from a stab wound. The victim was transported to a local hospital where he was pronounced deceased.

The suspect was placed in custody pursuant to three warrants sought out of Roxbury District Court on charges of Murder, Assault and Battery by Means of a Dangerous Weapon (2 Counts) and Armed Robbery.

The Boston Police Department continues to actively review the facts

The Use of Technology to Support Caregivers

CAREGIVER SOLUTIONS

Being the primary caregiver for an older adult or person with a disability can be challenging on many levels. Today, technology can empower caregivers with easy-to-use devices designed to keep care recipients connected to the world around them with music, games, news, video chat, and email. Caregiver Solutions, the caregiver support program of Boston Senior Home Care, offers several programs at no cost to caregivers enrolled in our program.

SUBMITTED BY FOSEL

Volunteers Wanted for Planting in Library Park

Volunteer for Fall Planting at Library Park!

The South End Library's Park has been weeded and mulched and is now ready for fall daffodil and hosta planting in preparation for spring 2022. Many thanks to all who helped - Chris Fagg, Barbara Faires, Reggie Ellenwood, Derek Plessing, Nancy Downer, Yvette Jarreau, and special thanks to Chris Neff of the Parks Department who provided the mulch in two big deliveries.

Check the site to volunteer for planting, likely in October. It is sure to be a fun community activity that will bring big smiles to the neighborhood in the spring.

Staff Changes at our South End Library

After many years of devoted service to the South End community, Head Librarian Anne Smart has retired. FOSEL enjoyed a very congenial and collaborative relationship with Anne since its founding over 14 years ago, and we wish to express our profound thanks for all she has done for the Library and the community. Anne, we wish you the best in this new phase of your life. We will miss you!

Matt Krug, another beloved Librarian at our branch since 2013, has also left with hopes of bringing his energy, creativity, and passion for service to a new organization in the Boston area. FOSEL offers our gratitude for his service and wishes him all the best as he navigates new "waters."

Baird, a novelist who, in the seventeen years since she was last published, has almost completely isolated herself from the world. But everything changes when she meets Christopher, a brilliant but enigmatic student in her creative writing class at Yale.

As their friendship deepens, their lives and the stories they tell about themselves become intertwined in unpredictable ways, leading to a shocking request. Intensely intimate and deeply moving, The Sound Inside is "an astonishing new play... about fiction, both the kind we read and the kind we live." (The New York Times)

Playwright Adam Rapp made his Broadway debut with The Sound Inside, which was commissioned by Lincoln Center and received its world premiere in 2018 at the Williamstown Theatre Festival. A 2006 Pulitzer Prize finalist for his play Red Light Winter, Rapp is also the author of Nocturne (American Repertory Theatre, New York Theatre Workshop), Finer Noble Gases (26th Humana Festival), Stone Cold Dead Serious (A.R.T.), Blackbird (The Bush, London), and Essential Self-Defense (Playwrights Horizons/Edge Theatre), among others.

Director Bryn Boice will helm this Boston premiere production of The Sound Inside. Winner of the 2019 Elliot Norton Award for Outstanding Director, Large Theater for Commonwealth Shakespeare Company's Universe Rushing Apart: Blue Kettle & Here We Go, Ms. Boice returns to SpeakEasy after having directed the company's 2020 production of The Children. Ms. Boice also serves as the Associate Artistic Director at Commonwealth Shakespeare Company and is a professor at Salem State University.

Jennifer Rohn (Broadway's The Kentucky Cycle) and Nathan Malin (SpeakEasy's Admissions) will star in this production.

The Sound Inside will run for four weeks, from September 24 through October 16, 2021, in the Roberts Studio Theatre in the Stanford Calderwood Pavilion at the Boston Center for the Arts, 527 Tremont Street in Boston's South End.

Ticket prices start at $25, with discounts for students, seniors, and people age 25 and under. For tickets or more information, the public is invited to call Boston Theatre Scene Ticketing Services at 617.933.8600 or visit www.SpeakEasyStage.com.

Boston Planning

South End Landmark District Commission, in 2019. In contrast, they say, financing remains possible for condo construction in Boston.

Bhogal and Calus paid $11 million for the building in July, 2019 to the Church of Scientology, which had once hoped to turn the building into its Boston headquarters. Developers and owners have been proposing new uses for decades for the former hotel, which opened in 1875, with an unusual steam-powered elevator. The hotel's decline began with the construction of an elevated subway line down Washington Street in 1900.

In their notice of project change to the BPDA, the developers say they would retain the same basic size and exterior originally planned for the hotel - essentially a glass tower that would be clad on its lower half on three sides with the original Alexandra facade. The fourth side would be extended into what is now a vacant lot where the equally historic Ivory Bean building once stood, but which had to be torn down after pieces of it began raining down on Washington Street.

Most of the units would be "compact" studios and one-bedroom condos, smaller than normally allowed by the city, as part of a pilot program to see if smaller units can help ease Boston's problem of housing people who are not financially well off. Some 14 of the units would be sold as affordable. The 13th floor, originally planned as a roof deck, would instead have the building's sole 2-bedroom unit plus three smaller units and a deck, according to the plans.

As with their hotel plans, the developers say the building, which already has a Silver Line stop outside, would have no parking. Residents would be barred from obtaining parking permits for either the South End or Roxbury - which neighborhood the building is in has been the subject of some debate.

The BPDA will hold a Zoom meeting on the proposal at 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 7.

Adjustments made to zoning rules in the South End to support cultural spaces
From BPDA

In 2012, The Harrison-Albany Corridor Strategic Plan recommendations were adopted into the South End Neighborhood District Article 64, governing affordable commercial and cultural space provisions.

The recommendations from the Harrison-Albany Corridor Strategic Plan have been successful in incentivizing on-site affordable commercial space in the Harrison-Albany area, but BPDA planners have determined further updates were necessary to ensure the continued provision of cultural spaces.

As part of these updates, the Mayor's Office of Arts and Culture will become the entity responsible for collecting, managing, and distributing funds in efforts to create affordable cultural spaces.

School's Back!

Know the school bus law

Massachusetts requires that vehicles stop for a bus that has flashing lights and an extended stop sign, when you are driving behind or toward the bus.

You may resume driving when the lights top flashing or the sign folds back in.

These rules apply to pupil transport vehicles—like vans, station wagons, or family sedans, that have flashing red lights and "SCHOOL BUS" signs on top.

Failing to stop or illegally passing a stopped school bus with flashing lights can result in $250 fine in Massachusetts, at minimum. A second offense by a fine of not less than $500.

Theater

While this Euripides-inspired effort may not be a theatrical eye of the storm, a crack Huntington Theatre cast makes the company's 40th anniversary opener a generally engaging no-intermission 90-minute howler.

Euripides buffs will appreciate George's transformation of the menacing god of agriculture, wine and song Dionysus of "The Bacchae" into a gender-bending demi-god turned climate change-fighting gardener named Diane. After a back story stay in Burlington, Vermont, Diane has arrived on the down low at what she considers the "perfect spot" to start her crusade to save the planet—namely suburban Red Bank, Monmouth County, New Jersey. Initially sporting a red armor-like garment befitting a god—credit designer Hahnji Jang's vivid costumes for her and the humans alike, Diane dons a fittingly green gardener's outfit for her undercover odyssey.

That odyssey entails convincing four wives—neighbors and friends who happen to reside in the same cul-de-sac setting—to turn their well-manicured lawns slowly suffocating the earth into a "lush primeval forest." The women in question—Carol, Beth, Renee and Pam—live in similarly structured homes with identical kitchen islands. While they seem to prize their suburban lifestyles, the differences between them confront Diane with diverse challenges as she implements her agenda.

Diane may compliment Carol's "pretty mouth," but the skeptical latter—who depends on HGTV and the latest landscaping ideas—senses that this atypical gardener is "more of a forest ranger" and is "hitting" on her. Vulnerable Beth—whose husband has left her—proves more open to Diane's unconventional approaches. Renee—who edits the HG magazine Carol loves—has lived on a commune and displays both a free spirit and sexual fluidity. No nonsense Pam is as prepared for storms and unexpected circumstances as a weather wizard, but the enterprising demigod looks to find her proverbial Achilles heel.

Does Diane transform the world? Playwright George provides detailed if somewhat predictable philosophical as well as sexual successes for the environmentalist god with Beth, Renee and Pam (each 'victory' benefiting from Jen Schriever's radiant lighting and Ben Scheff's strong sound design). As for adamant Carol, her opposition to Diane becomes a storm in its own right—resistance that she calls the "biggest organism."

What makes George's sometimes set-up scenario absorbing is a first-rate ensemble under Jenny Koons' taut direction. Rami Margron has all of Diane's charisma, swagger and tenacity. Marianna Bassham is touching as lost soul Beth. Kris Sidberry captures Renee's individuality as well as her malleability. Jennifer Bubrick is properly amusing and resourceful as Pam. Esme Allen has the right fiery attitude with Diane, especially as the demigod's fury unleashes the climactic storm.

That extended storm should be the actual ending of the play rather than a theatrically softening poetic speech by Beth—admittedly rendered with pathos by gifted Bassham. (Theatergoers familiar with the powerful Tony-winning Broadway revival of "Journey's End" will remember experiencing the unending bombs of World War I in a darkened theater as though they were soldiers). The climate change battle ought to have the force of Euripides. Instead, "Hurricane Diane" is a lively, often humorous fantasy that ultimately loses some intensity.

HOMELESS SERVICES AND HOSPITAL CAPACITY

On April 2nd, Mayor Walsh announced that construction begins at the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center to add 500 beds for treating homeless adults who have tested positive for COVID-19 and need care, but do not require full hospitalization.

The City has released a Request for Proposals to secure a partner organization to operate the facility. If necessary, the Convention Center beds will be opened up for hospitals to use for sub-acute COVID patients in the general population.

These 500 beds will bring Boston's total number of new beds for homeless individuals to over 1,000. This includes Boston Medical Center's Newton Pavilion facility, which the City and State are working to re-purpose as a medical facility for homeless residents affected by the coronavirus.

SMALL BUSINESS SUPPORT

On April 2nd, Mayor Walsh announced two new resources that will help small businesses during the public health crisis.

The City of Boston has created a Small Business Relief Fund. Drawing on a combination of City, federal, and private industry contributions, it establishes $2 million in grant funding—capable of providing a lifeline to hundreds of local businesses at risk of shutting down permanently due to the crisis. It will be administered as a streamlined version of the City's Small Business Financing program. Small businesses can begin applying on Monday, April 6.

The City of Boston has also created a Financial Relief Handbook and FAQ document for small businesses. It's a resource for navigating
