South End Giving Back

SUBMITTED BY CITY YEAR

South End resident David Thai is giving back by completing a year of public service in education as a City
Year Boston AmeriCorps member.

During his service, Thai is working at John F. Kennedy STEM Innovation School in Jamaica Plain to provide support to students in attendance, positive behavior, and coursework in English and math, and to ensure they stay on track to high school graduation. City Year Boston AmeriCorps members serve as critical mentors, tutors and role models in 23 Boston Public Schools, reaching more than 12,000 students

every day.

Thai is one of more than 3,000
City Year AmeriCorps members who serve over 196,000 students each day in nearly 300 high-need public schools nationwide. City Year's work is made possible by support from the Corporation for National and Community Service, school district partnerships, and private philanthropy from corporations, foundations and individuals. More info about City
Year Boston is available at cityyear.org/boston.

Landwave Update

Our Name - Discussion and Brainstorming

The neighborhood that Old Dover represents has experienced major changes through development over the past few years. Recent conversations with our New York Streets neighbors have brought us all to the conclusion we are stronger working together.

In order to be more inclusive, the Old Dover Board thought that this would be a good opportunity to explore whether we should change the name of our Association to better reflect all the streets where our neighbors and members reside. We welcome all residents within the area to join in the conversation... help brainstorm on possibilities for an appropriate and fitting name if the consensus is to go in that direction. We will devote time at the November meeting for this discussion. Feel free to also send thoughts and ideas to info@olddover.org

This will be the beginning of a process during which we gather ideas and explore different possibilities.

Board Election Schedule

Those interested in running for a seat on the Old Dover Board of Directors should send an email to info@olddover.org no later than January 8. Board elections will take place at the January 2018 neighborhood meeting.

Mumble
ANIMAL RESCUE LEAGUE of BOSTON

Helping animals since 1999
10 Chandler Street
Boston, MA 02116

Meet Mumble, a wonderfully soft 12 week old, male hamster that came in with 11 of his litter-mates. He is a laid back youngin', looking for a loving home to run around in an exercise ball. Like most hamsters, Mumble can be a bit skittish with new people and will need work on handling and socialization in his new home. In order to adopt Mumble, the staff at ARL will need to see a photo of the cage/enclosure he will be living in, prior to going home.

If you think Mumble could be the quiet companion you are looking for, please plan a visit to our adoption center today, or call 617.226.5602. The shelter is open Tuesday through Thursday 1-7pm & Friday through Sunday 1-4pm, excluding some holidays.

What constitutes real family? Buffalo native Simone seems to think that earning more than $100,000 a year, living in what she describes as her own carriage house and enjoying 500 feet of private beach at her employer's fancy summer home on Martha's Vineyard prove that she belongs.

Do the Architectural Digest-like estate's high maintenance trophy wife Michaela Kell and her successful unseen husband Peter agree? Where does Simone's unassuming but insightful visiting sister Devon fit in at this apparent paradise on earth?

Molly Smith Metzler, a Boston University playwriting program graduate who studied under Derek Walcott and Kate Snodgrass, spent a post-college summer on the island working at an upscale club and gained much more

Will you run for USES?

Seeking Boston Marathon runners

SUBMITTED BY USES

United South End Settlements (USES) is recruiting two runners who are passionate about our mission to run the 2018 Boston Marathon and fundraise in support of our mission. We encourage our South End neighbors to apply.

USES has been an official non-profit partner with John Hancock providing bibs to runners for the past two years, with runners on Team USES raising $15,513 the first year and $37,742 last year. The fundraising minimum requirement for Team USES in 2018 is $10,000 per runner.

USES will support runners with their training and fundraising, including coaching through Heartbreak Hill Running Company, online fundraising support, email communication design, fundraising and post-marathon celebration space, connections to local restaurants and business for fundraising support, tickets to The Neighborhood Gala in May 2018, and a tour and orientation to help runners become familiar with USES's programs and participants.

Through their fundraising work, runners will support USES's mission to harness the power of our diverse community to disrupt the cycle of poverty for children and their families. There is great need in our community: 36% of children in the South End live below the poverty line and we know that a child raised in a household in the poorest fifth of the income distribution has a 39% chance of being stuck at the bottom as an adult and just a 7% chance of making it to the top.

Nonetheless, there is also great opportunity: a $3,000 difference in parents' income when their child is young is associated with a 17% increase in the child's future earnings. At USES, we believe that families have the best chance to reach their potential when we support the whole family together—children, parents, caregivers, and other family members: we work with parents and caregivers to develop their own capacity to reach their goals through coaching, increase their income and assets through job training and placement, and expand their social networks through community connections.

For children, we provide quality education & enrichment opportunities through early childhood education, after school, and a summer sleepaway camp that promote their own development, expand their horizons, and ready them for school and beyond.

If you are interested in applying to run or have any questions, please contact Heather Kaufmann, Development Manager, at hkaufman@uses.org or (617) 375-8125 or visit our website at www.uses.org/team-uses-2018/.

Vision125: December Community Meeting

Join United South End Settlements' Board of Directors and President & CEO on Wednesday, December 6, from 6-8PM at the Harriet Tubman House, 566 Columbus Avenue, for the second in a series of conversations about USES's Vision125 strategic plan and future direction.

At this community meeting, we will focus on sharing our plans and goals for USES's real estate in the South End and provide space for dialogue and community input.

The mission of United South End Settlements

(USES) is to harness the power of our diverse community to disrupt the cycle of poverty for children and their families. We offer programs that holistically support families in achieving economic mobility.

We help parents and caregivers develop their own capacity to reach their goals, increase their income and assets, and connect with new networks of people through one-on-one coaching and a workforce development program which prepares participants for administrative work as a first step on a career pathway.

For children and youth, we provide quality education and enrichment opportunities that foster personal development and social emotional skills such as perseverance, communication, teamwork, and problem-solving.

We believe that as families increase their income and assets, become more resilient and connect to a diverse network, they and their children are more likely to develop the necessary skills to disrupt the cycle of poverty.

becomes clear and telling as Simone and Devon differ about which sister failed to identify the title letters as distinct parts of the alphabet, only to be cruelly called a 'retard' at school.

This difference actually becomes a kind of microcosm for the considerable distinctions between them and how they look at life and people. Simone thinks her newfound boyfriend Ethan, an associate of Peter's, is 'the real deal,' but Devon perceptively sees him as a flighty airhead. Simone believes that she and Michaela are best friends forever, but Devon sees through her exaggerated sense of security.

Later Michaela's emotional volatility takes its toll not only on herself but also on Simone. Michaela's trophy wife status, it turns out, is very much in jeopardy as Peter has pushed her out of his Jaguar, making her feel "like a homeless woman." As a scorned wife, she is even ready to turn on Simone during her escalating rage.

Despite Devon's sharp appraisal of Simone's precarious situation, Metzler is savvy enough as a young writer not to give the impression that she is all knowing and angelic. As part of the play's generally balanced dialogue, she has Simone remind Devon that she had helped her move to San Francisco at one point but the latter has not been keeping in touch.

Devon's mixed back story includes a disturbing and ultimately damaging online relationship with a boyfriend named

Tim who is revealed to be a "raging sex addict." Even so, sibling solidarity ultimately overcomes a variety of challenges.

Director Shana Cozansky keeps all of these challenges and the sisters' rollercoaster ride of reactions and responses fast-paced and fully convincing. Lydia Barnett-Mulligan captures Simone's naiveté and vulnerability without turning her into a caricature. Amanda Collins finds all of Devon's initial reserve as well as her protective stance for Simone.

Samantha Richert gives full expression to Michaela's bitchiness and fury but does equally well with her disillusion about Peter and her life. Metzler has been working on the part of Michaela and now calls her 2011 work "a new play."

Michaela's moment of truth may need to begin a bit earlier, but Richert makes her transformation stunningly haunting. Barlow Adamson has the right cheery elusiveness as Ethan. The other standout besides Richert is Jaime Carrillo as Jos-B, a put-upon Puerto Rican caretaker who is wrongly identified as Cuban by Michaela. Carrillo's timing is rapier-sharp as he dispels prejudicial assumptions.

Jeffrey Peterson's summer home set—complete with stage left beach terrain—is one of the best designs to grace the BPT in decades. A stage right door becomes a kind of silent transparent character as audience members witness Michaela raging with Simone behind its glass.

Beyond edgy humor and witty banter, "Elemeno Pea" makes human caring and sibling power as basic as ABC. BPT's staging is letter perfect.

Historic Neighborhood" and the recently released "Boston 1945-2015: The Decline and Rebirth of a Great World City"; and librarian Anne Smart of the South End Branch Library. In a departure from the previous two years, the festival moved from the Harriet Tubman House at United South End Settlements to the Harry Dow Room, named for Harry Dow, a local immigration lawyer and community activist who was the first Chinese American to be admitted to the bar in Massachusetts.

Lopez was happy with attendance. "It was a pretty good turnout. I'm not sure how many more people we could have had without violating the fire code!" he quipped. Many of the authors sold at least a portion of their inventory, and Lopez observed, "An event like this will often boost on-line sales for at least a couple of days."

Legendary community activist, former mayoral candidate and founder of the South End Technology Center Mel King signed copies of his recently revised book, "Chain of Change" and talked with neighbors. King and his wife, Joyce, are lifelong South Enders.

Charlie Caizzi, who spent much of his life in the South End before moving to Middleboro some years ago, was a friendly presence right at the entrance to the book festival, introducing himself and his memoir of his youth in the neighborhood, "Just So You Know".

The title of Caizzi's book reflects the matter-of-fact storytelling of the book, which is peppered with funny and colorful slices of life. Author William Kuhn, who lives in the Ellis neighborhood, explores social history in his novels, "Prince Harry, Boy to Man" and "Mrs. Queen Takes the Train" and his non-fiction work, "Reading Jackie: Her Autobiography in Books" about former First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

A full-time writer, Kuhn is now working on a book about

Lord Byron. While author Stephanie Schorow is not a South End resident, her books, "Combat Zone", "Drinking Boston" and "Boston on Fire" include episodes involving the South End as well as other nearby areas. Explaining the moniker of the former red-light district, Schorow said that the earliest reference to the "Combat Zone" came in a newspaper account of a judge who was sentencing a man who was charged with a barroom stabbing in 1950.

"The judge said, 'This [area] is terrible. Clean it up; it really is a combat zone,'" Schorow said. Schorow added that the name became more popular after an article in the Boston Record-American about shady activities in the Combat Zone.

Retired teacher Jean Cibran of West Canton Street presented her recent publication, "Kahlil Gibran: Beyond Borders", a revision of "Kahlil Gibran: His Life and World", an examination of the life of the poet Kahlil Gibran, author of "The Prophet".

Jean Cibran wrote the book with her late husband, the internationally renowned sculptor Kahlil G. Cibran, younger cousin of the poet. Jean Cibran also authored "Love Made Visible: Scenes from a Mostly Happy Marriage", a candid and eloquent memoir of her 50 years with the sculptor.

At the other end of the bright and airy venue, artist, illustrator and humorist Thom Donovan exhibited some of his work, which encompasses illustrations of the Emerald Necklace and a South End visitor map as well as a graphic novel on John Lennon's final days entitled "Lennon at Sea" and a book of clever, edgy verbal and visual puns entitled "Yes, Pun Intended".

Donovan feels the event is good exposure for his work. "I like it because it is my target demographic: baby boomers. Everyone knows who John Lennon is." One visitor to Donovan's table purchased 25 postcards of cartoons from "Yes, Pun Intended" and asked him to inscribe them on the back "To a Hero", with the intention to send them to soldiers over the holidays.

Public Meeting

ROXBURY STRATEGIC MASTER PLAN OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE

MONDAY, DECEMBER 4
6:00 PM - 7:45 PM

980 HARRISON AVE
Boston Water and Sewer Commission,
Training Room
Boston, MA 02119

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:

The Roxbury Strategic Master Plan Oversight Committee (RSMPOC) was developed to oversee projects that fall under the Roxbury Strategic Master Plan. Since last year's launch of PLAN: Dudley Square the RSMPOC meetings also include progress reports on the initiative. All meetings are open to the public and community input is desired. RSMPOC meetings are held in the evening the first Monday of the month. PLAN: Dudley Square workshops are typically every third Monday of the month, location varies.

Please come join your neighbors and the City of Boston to help shape the future of the neighborhood!
