The Year in Review-Theater

BY JULES BECKER

The South End in particular and Boston in general stood out much of the best and near-best theater of 2018. The childhood, college experience and adult insights

Notice of Public Meeting

A community meeting regarding the proposed cannabis establishment at 633 Tremont Street will be held on, 6:30PM, at the AC Hotel Marriott, Barclay Conference Room, 225 Albany Street, Boston.

Tuesday, January 15

Joan Diver will be at the South End library to talk about her debut memoir, When Spirit Calls: A Healing Odyssey at 6:30PM.

It describes the voyage by Diver, a former South End resident, from nationally recognized foundation executive and social-justice advocate to spiritual healer through times of family crisis and confrontation with the challenges of urban life, while managing intense physical pain resulting from back injuries and, finally, her spiritual awakening after exploring healing traditions in East and West.

BFIT and The Loop Lab Reach Dual Enrollment Agreement

Students will get College Credit for The Loop Lab AV Technology Programs

SUBMITTED BY BFIT

Benjamin Franklin Institute of Technology (BFIT) has reached an agreement with the nonprofit media production workshop, The Loop Lab, to give the organization's students in Cambridge free college credit for their audio visual training programs and internships. The agreement goes into effect for the 2019-2020 academic school year.

BFIT is a small, private, affordable, nonprofit college dedicated to meeting the Massachusetts skills shortage by training and educating Greater Boston diverse, urban youth for well-paying jobs in today's high demand industries, such as the audio visual technology field, which the U.S. Bureau of Labor predicts will add more than 17,000 new jobs by 2024. The Loop Lab is a Cambridge-based nonprofit media production workshop specializing in digital storytelling and workforce development to empower underserved talent in careers in the creative economy.

"Our team here at The Loop Lab is very excited to work with a college with a storied career in producing quality professionals," says Christopher Hope, the group's Executive Director. "We are looking forward to offering this academic opportunity to the young people who enter our doors. It will bring them that much closer to closing the loop of opportunity gaps that exist in the AV Technology field."

Under the agreement, The Loop Lab students must successfully complete the training and internship program to receive college credit that they can apply toward a BFIT associate degree in Computer Technology with a concentration in AV Technology. They must also meet BFIT admission requirements and the requirements of its Computer Technology program.

"We are excited to be getting students who we know are committed to a career in AV," says David Tavilla, coordinator of the BFIT AV Technology program. "They are not trying to figure out if they might want to work in AV - they know they want to be here and they will be ready to roll."

BFIT students graduate with practical experience in their field of study and other skills that are of immediate value in the workforce like teamwork, critical thinking, and professionalism. More than 90 percent of BFIT graduates either continue right into more advance education or enter the workforce shortly after graduation in a variety of high-demand technical jobs in the region.

Home," while the inner sparring of sexually conflicted middleweight boxing champion Emile Griffith proved as eye-catching as his championship bouts in Huntington Theatre Company's visceral and very moving production of the Michael Cristofer drama "Man in the Ring." Star Trek regular George Takei actually attended the press opening of SpeakEasy Stage Company's earnest area premiere of his autobiographical musical dealing with the internment of thousands of patriotic Japanese-Americans during World War II. Lyric Stage Company of Boston's revival of "The Wiz" proved as special as Dorothy's shoes. Alan Cumming combined activist passion about immigrants with dynamic singing of Broadway and other standards in an electric appearance at Symphony Hall. New York multiple talent Seth Rudetsky—pianist, writer and radio personality, among others—returned to the Boston Center for the Arts, this time with luminous legend Chita Rivera.

Area companies have produced so much fine work that once again this critic has put together separate small stage and large stage best lists. Here they are in alphabetical order:

Best of 2018 Small Stage Theater

Between Riverside and Crazy, SpeakEasy Stage Company.

Cabaret, Moonbox Productions. A chillingly fresh take on the landmark Kander and Ebb musical.

Dancing at Lughnasa, Gloucester Stage Company—a cast including Lindsay Crouse and Jenny Israel—caught the music of Brian Friel's masterwork.

Fun Home, SpeakEasy Stage Company. A rite of passage and family tension—especially between a closeted father and his lesbian daughter—hauntingly evoked.

Hype Man, Company One. This undaunted troupe forcefully captured the insight of Idris Goodwin's striking play about music, friendship and diverse

Liaisons Dangereuses, Nora Theatre Company. A stellar gender-bending ensemble—including Greg Maraio and Eddie Shields—examined this Laclos-based drama with new immediacy.

Love! Valour! Compassion!, Zeitgeist Stage Company. A poignant revival of the Terrence McNally modern classic. Area theatergoers and stage-supporting corporations need to rescue this financially strapped company from closing despite terrific work here and throughout its Boston Center residency.

Ripe Frenzy, New Repertory Theatre. A timely and trenchant staging of "Our Town" offsprung.

The Last Act, Israeli Stage. Emerson alumnus Guy Ben-Aharon's taut staging of this provocative Joshua Sobol drama.

The Wiz, Lyric Stage Company of Boston. A superb ensemble eased on down the road of this snappy Tony Award musical with high energy.

Honorable mentions

A Dead Man's Diary, Arlekin Players; Allegiance, SpeakEasy Stage; Guards at the Taj, Underground Railway Theater; NSFV, Theatre on Fire & Charlestown Working Theatre; Peter and the Starcatcher, Hub Theatre Company of Boston; Red Velvet, OWI (Bureau of Theatre); Shakespeare in Love, SpeakEasy Stage.

Best of 2018 Large Stage Theatre

An American in Paris, Ogunquit Playhouse. Arguably the most exciting musical revival of the year.

Anything Goes, Reagle Music Theatre. Vibrant vocals from Leigh Barrett and especially Jared Troilo.

The Niceties, Huntington Theatre Company. Possibly the year's best verbal fireworks.

Lost Laughs: The Slapstick Tragedy of Fatty Arbuckle, Merrimack Repertory Theatre.

A needed new look at the underrated title silent film talent.

Mame, North Shore Music Theatre. The Jerry Herman banquet beautifully served.

Man in the Ring, Huntington Theatre Company. The standout play production of the year and arguably the best effort of 2018.

Moulin Rouge, Emerson Colonial Theatre (opening fall, 2019 at Broadway's Hirschfeld Theatre). This splashy new musical gave the beautifully renovated Emerson Colonial Theatre an auspicious re-opening.

Ragtime, Trinity Repertory Theatre. An arrestingly no-frills but superbly sung revival.

Richard III, Commonwealth Shakespeare Company. Stunning look at a British monarch's fake news and heart-wrenching subtext about concurrent damage to women and children.

The White Card, American Repertory Theatre and Arts Emerson. Strong exchanges about white and black perceptions as well as prejudice and political correctness.

Honorable mentions

Barbershop Chronicles, A.R.T.; Jagged Little Pill, A.R.T.; Murder for Two, Merrimack Repertory Theatre.

Best of 2018 Visiting Theatre

Bedlam's Hamlet, Arts Emerson
Born for This, Arts Emerson
Hamilton, Broadway in Boston
The Humans, Boch Center for the Arts
The Play That Goes Wrong, Emerson Colonial Theatre

Special Theatrical Events

Alan Cumming Legal Immigrant, Celebrity Series of Boston

Chita Rivera with Seth Rudetsky, Huntington Theatre Company.

South End Man Arraigned in Brighton Double Homicide

SUBMITTED BY
SUFFOLK COUNTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

The man who allegedly shot 26-year-old Wilfred Peters and 27-year-old Jeffrey Montaque to death earlier this year was arraigned today for their murders after more than five months on the run, Suffolk County District Attorney John P. Pappas said.

Nicholas Antoine, 20, of Boston's South End was ordered held without bail in Suffolk Superior Court on indictments charging him with two counts of first-degree murder and firearms offenses for the June 30 incident on Faneuil Street in Brighton.

Assistant District Attorney Julie Higgins of the DA's Homicide Unit told the court that Antoine was among a small group of people at Peters' home on the night of June 5 into the morning of June 6. At some point, the evidence suggests, Antoine was asked to leave that small gathering – at which point he allegedly went to his car, retrieved a firearm, and returned. Prosecutors say he opened fire, striking both Peters and Montaque multiple times before fleeing. Both victims were pronounced dead at the scene.

Higgins told the court that ballistics evidence suggests only one firearm was used in the shootings. She said Antoine was identified as the gunman through eyewitness statements, video footage, fingerprints, and other evidence. Investigators obtained a district court complaint charging him with the murders, and the Suffolk County Grand Jury indicted him in August, but he was not apprehended until his arrest earlier this month in Jonesboro, Georgia.

Also arraigned today was JOCELYN VASQUEZ, 32, charged in Dorchester Municipal Court with murder for the fatal shooting of 33-year-old Garfield Thomas in his Mattapan home. She, too, was held without bail.

Assistant District Attorney Mark Lee, deputy chief of the DA's Homicide Unit, told the court that Vasquez shared Thomas' third-floor apartment Evelyn Street and shot him in the stomach with a handgun after an altercation on the morning of May 15. She allegedly hid the weapon beneath a mattress and fled the scene. Critically wounded, Thomas made his way to the building's first floor, where he made statements to another resident and to first responders. Among other evidence, investigators recovered Vasquez' fingerprints from the firearm as well as video evidence showing her leaving the building shortly after the time of the shooting.

Antoine was represented today by attorney Christopher Belezos and will return to court on Jan. 24. Vasquez was represented by attorney Anthony Ellison and will return to court on Feb. 8.
