

Blackstone School community mobilizes to fight $500,000 budget shortfall

Rally, speeches, and an art exhibit boost their campaign to stop staff cuts

SUBMITTED BY ARIEL BRANZ

One hundred parents, students, and teachers from the Blackstone Elementary School in the South End marched on Boston Public Schools headquarters this week to demand that staff cuts slated for next year be cancelled.

The BPS budget is scheduled for release at a School Committee meeting on February 6, but parents at several schools have already learned of painful staff cuts. More parents are expected to converge on the School Committee February 6.

In a taste of things to come, Blackstone community members holding banners and signs marched through the elegant Bolling Building lobby last Wednesday and set up an exhibit of student art and letters opposing the cuts outside the School Committee chambers. More than 20 spoke at the School Committee meeting, telling personal stories about staff who changed students' lives.

Fifth grader Joshua Greenaway testified: "I don't understand why my school keeps losing the things that mean the most to me, while other

Sen. Sonia Chang-Díaz Announces Winter Neighborhood Office Hours

SUBMITTED BY SEN. CHANG-DÍAZ

Senator Sonia Chang-Díaz has announced neighborhood office hours for February 2019. Office Hours, held by Sen. Chang-Díaz and her staff, will take place within each of the neighborhoods of the Second Suffolk District.

These office hours are a great opportunity to discuss any community or statewide issues and hear about what's going on at the State House. Office hours will be held at the following times and locations. Please note that there are both morning and evening office hours.

Jamaica Plain – Tuesday, February 5, 5-6PM, Jamaica Plain Library, 30 South Street. Description: Grab your weekend page turner and talk about issues in the neighborhood with Senator Chang-Díaz and Legislative Aide Ethan Smith.

Mattapan – Wednesday, February 6, 4:30-6PM, Mattapan Library, 1350 Blue Hill Avenue. Description: Take your library card along and meet with Legislative Aide Maia Raynor to talk about issues in the neighborhood & State House.

Hyde Park – Thursday, February 7, 5-6PM, Hyde Park Library, 35 Harvard Ave. Description: Refresh your reading list and sit down with Legislative Aide Ethan Smith to discuss what is going on in the neighborhood.

Mission Hill – Tuesday, February 12,

8:30-9:30AM, Mike's Donuts, 1524 Tremont St. Description: Pick up a delicious donut and then join Communications Director Joshua Wolfson to talk local updates and upcoming legislation.

Dorchester – Tuesday, February 12, 1:30-3:30PM, Grove Hall Senior Center, 51 Geneva Ave. Description: Sit down with Legislative Aide Maia Raynor and talk about what's been happening at the State House.

South End – Tuesday, February 12, 6:45-7:45PM, South End Community Health Center, 1601 Washington Street. Description: Join Sen. Chang-Díaz and Legislative Director Ernesto Reyes Hernández to discuss local issues and the upcoming legislation.

Roxbury – Thursday, February 14, 5:30-7:00PM, Cory Johnson Program for Post-Traumatic Healing at RPC Social Impact Center, 328 Warren Street. Description: Learn about post-traumatic healing and catch up with Legislative Aide Maia Raynor for all the latest updates.

Those who cannot attend these office hours can contact Sen. Chang-Díaz's office at 617-722-1673, email Sonia.Chang-Diaz@masenate.gov, or stop by her State House office, located in Room 111 on the first floor of the State House for assistance.

Any questions regarding the Senator's office hours can be directed to her Communications Director, Joshua Wolfson, at 617-722-1673 or Joshua.Wolfson@masenate.gov.

February is Career Education Month

Come Celebrate at Madison Park Technical
Vocational High School

SUBMITTED BY MPTVHS

Boston Public Schools will be celebrating Career Technical Education Month. Madison Park Technical Vocational High School (MPTVHS) is the only Vocational High School in Boston and offers nineteen specialized Vocational Programs under one rooftop to Boston Public Schools students. We will be opening our doors to the community and celebrating our students' achievements on Monday, February 4 through Friday, February 8, 2019 from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

With over nine major development projects transforming Boston landscape, MPTVHS is working to prepare students for careers across the City of Boston and beyond. Our classroom laboratories are state-of-the-art with the latest and most relevant equipment and software. Students experience hands-on, project based learning opportunities that help prepare them for career and college opportunities.

Kevin McCaskill, the Executive Director says, "We are building Boston's workforce. Our students will be a part of transforming the city and the neighborhoods they reside in."

Over the past three years more than 100 students have graduated from five of MPTVHS Civic Infrastructure Trades (Metal Fabrication, Plumbing, Carpentry, Electricity and Facility and Property Management). MPTVHS will continue to be a force with creating a pipeline for young people to have sustainable careers.

Madison Park's mission is to provide our diverse student body with the opportunity to acquire an integrated career and academic education. Individualized instruction, applied learning and work site experience prepare all students to succeed in technologically advanced careers, as well as post-secondary education. Students who meet all graduation requirements may receive both a BPS Diploma and a Certificate of Competency in their technical program.

schools get more. Some schools, like charter schools, are getting a second building, while we lose swim class. Other schools are learning in updated classrooms, when most of us are learning in classrooms that don't have walls or doors. We are losing teachers, mentors, and resources. What is next? Taking money away from our school needs to stop."

Parent Rafaela Polanco described her first day at the school, newly arrived from the Dominican Republic with her young son. Neither of them spoke English and her son was afraid to be left alone. But staff took care of them. Soon, her son began telling her how they were teaching him English, and how one particular staff member "makes me feel I am important here at school."

With staff cuts looming, Polanco said, "I'm wondering, how many parents are going to arrive at the Blackstone School with my story? Perhaps we're no longer going to have that incredible and wonderful body of teachers that we have here today."

The planned reductions at the Blackstone are especially concentrated in special education for students with disabilities, with a loss of four positions.

According to state statistics, 24 percent of Blackstone students have disabilities, 47 percent are English learners, and 76 percent come from low-income families.

"The Blackstone has become a refuge for high needs students who have been pushed out and marginalized by nearby 'level one' schools," said teacher Crystal Collier. "We're busting at the seams to treat them and help them. We're at capacity. We're doing the best we can to give them a 21st century education."

"Last year," said teacher Alex Sullivan, "we serviced our hundreds of English language learners with one ESL teacher. Next year, thanks to a lawsuit from the Department of Justice, we will have over six ESL teachers. What a disgrace that it took a lawsuit to bring those resources to our students."

"So I ask you, with one [special education] resource teacher next year, down from five this year, are we just waiting for a lawsuit that protects our students with special needs, so that we might meet their needs?"

ASK DOG LADY

Advice on Pets, Life, Love

BY MONICA COLLINS

Dear Dog Lady,

Help! After having found a wonderful guy, we moved in together along with my standard poodle and his two Maltese. His boys had never been housebroken, ever. They also had never been socialized. We discussed hiring a pro to train us and the dogs.

When he moved here I made it clear I would not live in a house where dogs peed and marked at will—not to mention their incessant barking at all hours. I asked and asked and he never made the effort to find a trainer. So I found one. He paid up front and never followed through on any of the lessons.

Fast forward two years later. The dogs are now crated and not allowed to run free, but they still bark and, if I am not home, he doesn't watch them. I come home to find pee on furniture and wood floors that now have ugly permanent stains.

I love this man dearly, but I don't know how long I can actually endure this behavior from him. What is up? Why his reluctance to provide structure and rules for his dogs? He is absolutely nuts about dogs. What gives?

—Desperate in Paradise

Dear Desperate in Paradise,

Is he really nuts about dogs? Or just nuts? If he truly loved and honored his dogs, he would have trained them when he first got them before you were part of the picture. He would have done this for his pets because a trained dog is a happier, healthier dog. A chaotic canine, peeing on everything and barking willy-nilly is not a contented creature. So, please, abandon your misconceptions about the guy's devotion to animals.

And maybe you've got to abandon your misconceptions about the guy's devotion to you. It seems as if he shirks responsibility to you and your home. This is harsh but Dog Lady would point him toward the door and tell him to come back when he's figured out how to care for you and his dogs.

Dear Dog Lady,

My nine-year-old shih tzu has been becoming increasingly sensitive to certain noises, such as buzzers or bells on TV and some instruments in music, or any sounds from a cell phone. When he hears the tick of a warming oven or the beeping of the turn-on buttons of appliances, he runs for the door and scratches and growls to go out of the house.

This weird and annoying quirk began about a year ago and is getting progressively worse. Any ideas?

—Joanne

Dear Joanne,

Ooh, the poor guy. At nine years, your shih tzu is becoming a senior member of the pack. As dogs become elders, things can change in their bodies and minds. You should first go to your veterinarian for an examination. Ask your vet to examine your dog's ears. Tell her (or him) what is happening, how your little guy is more sensitive to certain sounds. This could be a biological issue. On the other hand, if the vet believes the cause is behavioral, seek a referral to a dog behaviorist/trainer who could help you. Maybe some modification coaching would be good for both of you so you could become more aware of the sounds bothering your dog and your dog could become less bothered.
